Muhammad Ali , Praying

1985, Los Angeles
60 x 40 cm
Archival Pigment Print
Edition 10 + 2AP

In this rare and deeply personal photograph, Dutch photographer Guus Dubbelman captures Muhammad Ali during morning prayers at his home in Los Angeles in 1985. Taken over the course of a five-day stay, the image reveals a quiet, introspective side of the legendary boxer far removed from the public spectacle of the ring.

Dubbelman's connection to Ali began nearly a decade earlier, when, as a teenager, he waited for hours in the lobby of Amsterdam's Hotel Okura to meet his idol. What followed was a friendship marked by mutual curiosity and respect. Through Ali, Dubbelman found not only a subject but a human story - one of faith, vulnerability, and grace.

This photograph is perhaps his most intimate portrait of Ali: the champion at rest, absorbed in prayer, his strength transformed into stillness. Dubbelman's lens, grounded in empathy and fascination, offers a rare glimpse of a man who was both a global icon and profoundly human.
